We Love What We Do

When you enjoy what you do, you become great at it - and we love creating technology for real estate agents.

Zenu was founded by our team of real estate experts with a huge amount of experience in all facets of the industry: Designers, developers, trainers, support crew, administrators, strategists, and also Eddie Lynch - a pioneer in Australian real estate software.

After building past projects such as PortPlus and gaining valuable experience, we saw the need for a fully integrated system that is easy to use but also extremely powerful.

Creating Zenu required a complete re-think of how software is used in real estate; an overhaul from the ground up.

Fusing creative ideas from our team and continual feedback from agents, the result is unique industry leading concept - designed to give your business the edge.

Our business revolves around our clients, that's why our database is integral to how we work. Implementing Zenu has helped us to really narrow our focus onto what matters online and in the office.

From a reporting point of view it has helped us stay on top of things, and the team have quickly taken to using it. It's a CRM that's so easy, it's like you're not using a CRM at all.

The great thing about Zenu is you don't need a licence to drive it! We found the one thing all systems had in common was they were complicated to use.

Zenu has exceeded all expectations, it has been created with a clear understanding of the people who it is designed for.

Finally we have something that our team can easily use, so they can focus on closing deals.
